

Phil O'Reilly, ONZM, is Managing Director of Iron Duke Partners, a Wellingtonbased Public Policy Advisory Firm. He is a global business leader and advocate.

He is Chair of the Board of Business at OECD, based in Paris, which is the representative of businesses in OECD member states. Until recently, he was a member of the Governing Body of the International Labor Organization based in Geneva. He is involved in the work of the B20 - advising G20 leaders.

He has acted in a governance or advisory capacity to a number of New Zealand and overseas organizations in areas as diverse as trade, sustainability, diversity, pay equity, manufacturing, tertiary education, child poverty, social welfare reform and the future of work.

He was previously Chief Executive of BusinessNZ, New Zealand's leading business advocacy group, representing thousands of businesses of all sizes.