

Charles Ahn is currently Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of CrucialTec, the Korean smart IOT sensor manufacturer, established in 2001.

He is also President of the Korea Venture Business Association (KOVA), which supports Korean venture companies and contributes to the development of Korea venture infrastructure by way of consulting, financing, among others.

He is Professor of Computer and Information Engineering at the Hoseo University.

Mr. Ahn is currently a member of the Committee of Korea Industrial Technology Protection, founded by Korean government under Korean industrial protection law, and a member of the Committee of Finding Jobs, which was founded by Korean government.

He was conferred the Silver Tower Order of Industrial Service Merit by the Korean government for his contribution to the development of Korean industry.

He was previously Chief Technology Officer of Luxtech. He started his career in Samsung Electronics as a senior engineer.

Mr. Ahn received his master's degree in Precision Mechanical Engineering from KyeongBuk National University, and his bachelor's degree in Mechanical Engineering from Busan National University.