Innovation in Social Security Systems, Retirement Schemes, Insourcing and Outsourcing Investment Models

The world’s largest pension fund, GPIF, has increased the number of its external fund managers in recent years. This is primarily to access world-class expertise and resources of global asset managers in search of yields.

In Asia, pension funds and social security systems are beginning the process of securing government and Board of Commissioners approvals to follow suit.

As this trend comes to fruition, what are the remaining concerns and issues that these institutions must address?

How best to manage and address the issue of fund manager fees and returns?
