

Jamie Lin now serves as President at Taiwan Mobile, a leading telecom & technology group, as well as Chairman & Partner at AppWorks, a leading startup accelerator and venture capital firm in Asia.

Taiwan Mobile group, with a combined USD 6 billion in annual revenues, serves 10 million mobile subscribers, operates the state's largest online retail shop, momo, and brings cable TV & home broadband to 1.7 million households. AppWorks has USD 350 million AUM across four funds. Its notable portfolio includes Uber, Lalamove, Animoca Brands, Tiki, 91APP, KKday, ShopBack, Carousell, Beam Mobility, Kraken, Dapper Labs and Flow.

In 1999, Mr. Lin co-founded Hotcool.com, a pioneer in the burgeoning e-commerce industry that evolved into Intumit, a successful AI software-as-a-service company that eventually went public through an IPO.

He has been active in contributing back to the global community. He was a proud Member of the APEC Vision Group (AVG).

Mr. Lin has always considered himself a geek at heart, having started coding and putting computers together since the age of ten. He received his BS in Engineering from National Taiwan University and an MBA from NYU Stern. His blog, MR JAMIE, has provided inspiration to millions of readers in the startup community since 2009.