

Ginger Lew has an extensive career as a public policy leader and successful business executive and entrepreneur. Under five different U.S. presidents, she has served as Chief Counsel for the Department of Energy, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for East Asia, General Counsel for the Department of Commerce, Deputy Administrator and Chief Operating Officer for the Small Business Administration, and Senior Counselor to the White House National Economic Council.

Ms. Lew is the co-founder and managing director of a renewable energy company, Cube Hydro Partners. She has been a senior policy advisor to I Squared Capital, a global infrastructure fund based in Miami, and a senior advisor to Equilibrium, a private equity fund based in Portland, Oregon. She was chair and board member of a European-based investment fund. For ten years, she was Co-Chair and member of the NASDAQ Listing and Hearing Review Council.

She has been on the board of several private and publicly-listed companies. She has also been active with numerous not for profit organizations such as the Meyer Foundation, the Yosemite National Institute, and the Smithsonian Institute, among others.